The premise is deceptively easy: four college students – Randy, LaVerne, Derek, and Sue – discover a puzzling object floating on a remote water body. This object, a shadowy mass roughly the size of a raft, proves to be something far more sinister than it initially appears. As the students examine the thing, they efficient, perfectly reflecting the students' growing terror and the dread of their situation.

Beyond the surface fear, "The Raft" explores some profound topics. The students' answers to the hazard highlight the fragility of the individual condition and the various means in which individuals deal with extreme strain. The relationships between the characters show the complexities of friendship, loyalty, and selfishness under stress.
